“Care or support” means providing care, psychological or emotional support, other than care provided by a health professional, that is required because of a critically ill child’s state of health.

For the purpose of this policy only, a “parent” is a person who, in law is a parent (including an adoptive parent) of a critically ill child, has the custody of or is the guardian of the child or a person with whom the child is placed for the purposes of adoption under the laws governing adoption in the province in which the person resides.

Procedure: a) Requests for critically ill child care leave must be in writing and submitted to the employee’s immediate supervisor, together with a medical certificate, as far as possible in advance of the date the employee intends to commence the leave. Upon giving the appropriate notice, an employee shall be granted leave with pay consistent with the term specified in the medical certificate to a maximum period of up to thirty-seven (37) weeks. (Appendix P)

- b) Leave may be taken only during the period that starts at the beginning of the period during which the child requires the care or support in accordance with the medical certificate issued and ends on the earlier of the following dates:
  - (i) The period of care or support set out in the medical certificate has expired;
  - (ii) The employee is no longer providing care or support to the child;
  - (iii) The thirty-seven (37) week leave has been taken;
  - (iv) Fifty-two (52) weeks from the date the medical certificate is issued; or
  - (v) On the death of the employee's child.

- c) If a critically ill child remains critically ill after the period specified in the medical certificate ends and if less than thirty-seven (37) weeks has expired since the leave commenced, the employee may extend the leave if a new medical certificate is issued by the qualified medical practitioner confirming the illness continues and setting out a new period during which the child requires the care or support of the employee provided the total combined leave taken does not exceed thirty-seven (37) weeks and the total leave period will conclude with fifty-two (52) weeks that begins on the first day of the week in which the child first became critically ill.

- d) If a critically ill child remains critically ill after the expiration of the fifty-two (52) week period that begins on the first day of the week in which the child became critically ill, an employee is entitled to apply for another unpaid leave period that begins on the first day of the week in which the additional medical certificate is issued.

- e) If more than one child is critically ill as the result of the same event, the employee is not entitled to a longer leave period than would be available for one child.

- f) If an employee wishes to end the leave prior to any circumstance specified in the above procedures the employee must give the Archdiocese of Regina written notice as far as possible in advance of the date the employee intends to return to work.
