INTERVIEW TIPS

Active listening is a way of communicating to another person that you are there to listen, to understand, and to accept what the other has to say.

Control the Physical Setting

Remove all distractions and ensure privacy. Hold telephone calls, close the door and clear desktops. Arrange the seating so that you can see each other. Make sure you are able to hear each other.

Demonstrate Interest

Face the person being interviewed. Adopt a relaxed posture that physically shows you are interested. Do not allow your attention to wander.

Create an Open and Trusting Atmosphere

Help to put the person being interviewed at ease by creating an encouraging environment. Try to make the person to feel comfortable while he or she is speaking.

Empathize with the Speaker

Try to see the viewpoint of the person being interviewed by putting yourself in his or her place. Stay focused on what the person is saying rather than formulating your own views, rebuttals or questions.

Observe as Well as Listen

Be aware of the overall behavior of the person being interviewed. Try to understand the meaning of what the person is saying by observing the tone of voice, the body language, and the facial expressions.

Be Patient

Understand that the average person can listen to about 400 words per minute while people speak at about 125 words per minute. Do not interrupt. A long pause often precedes an important comment.

Indicate Simple Acceptance

Show that you have heard the speaker, not necessarily that you agree with them.

Stop Talking

You cannot listen if you are talking. Resist the impulse to fill quiet spots with your own voice.
